

ORCHARD REPEATS STORY OF CRIMES

Cross-Examination in Pettibone Trial Will Be Comparatively Short.

BOISE, Idaho, Dec. 11.—Just before Harry Orchard took the stand today to tell for the second time his story of murders and assassinations, Clarence Darrow, leading counsel for George A. Pettibone, said that his cross-examination of Orchard would be very brief as compared with that in the Haywood trial.

Darrow will profit by the failure of E. F. Richardson to shake the testimony of the witness after a week's effort, and will conduct his cross-examination along entirely different lines, only endeavoring to picture Orchard before the jury as "an inhuman monster, unworthy of belief."

The direct examination probably will be finished tomorrow and it is thought that not more than two days will be consumed in cross-examination.

School Board Angry At Cut in Estimates

Wishes to Know by What Authority Commissioners Did So—Postage Stamp Bill Too Big—Attack on Ashford Again.

That Congress, and not the District Commissioners, should cut the school board's estimates, if there is any cutting to be done, was the stand assumed by the board at its regular meeting yesterday, when it instructed that the Commissioners should be asked why they had taken such responsibility upon themselves.

The session yesterday was partly devoted to routine business, but the action mentioned above, together with some caustic comment, when it became known that the board may face a suit for damages on account of injuries received by a pupil through alleged defective repair work in the Pierce School, enlivened matters very much.

Cut Out $26,200.

The board got down to business by hearing a report from W. V. Cox, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, who showed wherein the Commissioners had cut the estimates of the board for the ensuing year some $26,200. The Committee had declined to transmit to Congress the items proposed for an architect at $3,000 per year; repairs and plumbing appropriation had been cut $5,000; attorney's fees of $1,200 had been omitted altogether; $7,000 for the completion of the Brookland school buildings had also gone out, and to finish up the job $20,000 had been cut back.

"We might as well know where we stand," said President Oyster. The board thought likewise and instructed the secretary to drop a note to the Commissioners asking by whose authority and by whom the school estimates had been cut, and asking further that these items be restored.

"The idea of not wanting to pay our attorney, after all these trials and tribulations," said Mr. Mussey. "He should have more. The work on this Chancellor trial is worth $500 alone." Other members of the board thought likewise.

Parent Ready to Sue.

Captain Oyster did not make the name public, but said that he had received a letter from a parent who informed him that his son had fallen down the steps at the Pierce school on account of the breaking of a rail, and that he would probably sue the school system for damages.

"Some more of Building Inspector Ashford's good work," remarked Captain Oyster. The letter was referred to the proper committee and will be acted upon.

The board voted to close the schools for the Christmas vacation December 20, which is the close of the week, instead of hold a one-day session the following week as originally planned.

Woodburn School Rule.

Permission was given to the Woodburn school to close at 2:30 daily, in order that teachers may take a 2:37 train. Captain Oyster was asked to render all assistance possible in making arrangements for the entertainment of the delegates to the school superintendents' convention which meets here in February.

A communication from the Columbia Heights Citizens' Association asked for a high school building north of Florida avenue. The letter was referred to the committee, with the suggestion that it be considered in next year's estimates, if advisable.

Use Too Much Postage.

The board apparently was surprised when a communication was read from the Commissioners asking that the school system use less postage stamps. Last year it was recited only $500 were used, while $870 had already been expended to date. A chorus about the table proclaimed that each board member was paying his own postage, as to that, and getting tired of it, and that the system had not been extravagant.

Mr. Horner asked that he be put on record as not favoring a recent appointment of Miss Montgomery and Mr. Cromwell as teachers in lieu of Normal School graduates who were on the waiting list.

Mr. Horner said he had no personal objection to the appointments, but objected to outsiders being appointed when there were eligibles from the city normal schools.

The board adjourned after authorizing a number of promotions, transfers, and accepting resignations.

Report on Schools To Business Men Highly Commended

One of the most interesting reports received by the Chamber of Commerce at its monthly meeting last night at the Washington Hotel was that of the

The Raleigh Hotel was made by the committee that has been investigating the laws governing the public schools in the District.

Chairman Percival Brown read the report, at the conclusion of which a round of applause burst from those present. The committee, Mr. Brown said, had not advanced far enough in the work to make a report, but some results were obtained.

The report defended the school laws as drawn by Congress and stated "that the powers vested in the board of education are not too large to secure that general supervision which the act intended the board to exercise for the benefit of the teachers, children, and the community. The board is responsible for the wise disbursement of school funds, for the general condition of the schools and their sanitary condition; it is charged with the responsibility of guaranteeing that the general policy of the schools shall be satisfactory and that wisdom, justice, and fairness prevail in the matter of the appointment, promotion, and removal of teachers. With these powers," Mr. Brown said, "ample scope is afforded for the exercise of the best class of educational work."

"If the law has to be changed," the report continues, "it is urgently asked to bring about the change by amendment and not by the drafting of an entirely new law. Too many changes without having given any one code a fair trial are not conducive to good working harmony."

Criticism of the law was deprecated and a strong plea was entered for further trial of the law before it should be changed.

The committee closes its report by saying: "The committee is impressed with the fact that the scheme of this law to a very large degree places the control of the schools of the District in the hands of the people. The Board of Education guarantees a representative body and through whom the wishes of the people of the District can be expressed and receive such consideration as they may be entitled to. Having received from Congress a law containing so many excellent features, the District of Columbia should not be changed for something that may put authority elsewhere, and remove all, or some, of the guarantees contained in the present act for the just, fair, and effective administration of the school system."

The committee was composed of: Percival M. Brown, Ernest H. Daniel, R. A. Chester, Albert Schulteis, William F. Gude, J. C. Brogdon, B. F. Barnes, Benjamin W. Guy, A. Lewitich, Jr., G. C. Collins, Isaac Gans, Allen D. Albert, Jr.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Because his wife refused to deed back to him a two-flat building in which they lived, Frank Nelson, bookkeeper for Swift & Co., killed his wife, shot his mother-in-law, and now is held at the Sheffield avenue police station.

Nelson last night began an argument with his wife and her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. David S. Hammill, over the property. Hammill left the parlor and retired to his room. The two women then went to Mrs. Nelson's bedroom. According to Mrs. Hammill her daughter attempted to stop Nelson from kicking in the door, and in pleading with him not to shoot when she was killed.

When his wife dropped Nelson fired three shots at her. Hammill, all of which took effect. She will recover.
